Victory For Japanese Diplomacy

ORIENT GETS CHANGE IN PROTOCOL ON PEACE

Dispute Which Threatens League's Plans End With Compromise

GENEVA, Sept. 30.—The Japanese dispute which threatened to wreck the League of Nations peace plans was virtually settled today when Japan and Australia accepted a compromise formula dealing with the aggressor clause of the arbitration protocol.

The formula in question, which is based upon Article 11 of the League of Nations covenant, was carefully examined at a secret meeting of British, French and Japanese delegates.

Article 11 deals with international dangers wherein war is threatened. This formula gives Japan the constitutional right, under the league covenant, to appeal to the league council if she believes war is threatened. It gives other members of the league the same right.

Victory for Japan

An amendment will be drawn, based upon the formula, for insertion in the arbitration protocol.

The amendment which will be attached to Article 6 of the arbitration protocol to meet the Japanese protest reads:

"If a question is held by a court of arbitration to be a matter solely within the state's jurisdiction, the decision shall not prevent the league council or assembly from considering the situation in accordance with Article 11 of the league covenant"

The committee of three which examined the formula consisted of Sir Cecil Hurst of England; M. Loucheur of France, and Signor Scialoja of Italy.

Announcement was made that these three, after careful examination of the formula, agreed in behalf of their governments to accept the principle that the league

The child was passing the bear's cage when suddenly a huge brown paw shot out, clutched her dress and pulled the body toward it. Townspeople were forced to shoot the animal to gain possession of the body.

His wrath and bitterness are directed against R. Robert Plummer, 30, former chief of police of La Grange, Ill., whom he charges with being the third figure in the love triangle.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30.—Four thousand combatants have been killed and wounded—the heaviest battle casualty list in the history of Chinese civil strife—but the battle lines outside Shanghai remained essentially unchanged today.

Machine guns played the heaviest part in the night and day hammering of the Chekiang and Kiangsu lines, with attack and counter-attack sending scores of wounded streaming back to the field hospitals.

The next big engagement is expected at Sung Kiang. Several bridges have been dynamited by Lu Yung Hsiang's troops to prevent the Kiangsu forces from moving up the big guns to strengthen their attempt to take Shanghai.

Police Office Is No Place for Long Hairs

When Chief John D. Fraser of the Glendale police department came to his desk this morning and called in his personal stenographer, Mrs. Ethel Roudebush, to dictate a few letters, he had to look twice to believe his eyes.

What he saw was a curly mass of bobbed chestnut locks! In short, some unerring tonsorial artist had shaken a mean set of shears. Now that bobbed hair has set its insidious precedent even in the inmost sanctum of the law, it is expected that an epidemic of hair bobbing will rapidly communicate itself to the other municipal departments, which, to date, have been one of the last "long hair" strongholds in Glendale.

Seniors Are Leaders In Membership Drive

The seniors proved themselves the unquestioned leaders of the Glendale Union High school student body when they obtained the coveted 100 per cent on opening day of the recent membership drive. The juniors came second with 85 per cent and the sophomores ran third with 83 per cent. The freshmen have not yet completed checking the returns from their drive.

Following are the standings of the roll rooms:

Girls	Boys
1. 121	1. 312
2. 204	2. 108
3. 356	3. 226
4. 225	4. 314
5. 224	5. 350,124
6. 222	6. 216
7. 212	7. 353,119,135
8. 120	8. 313

12. 205	12. 355
13. 131	13. 127

These are the first roll rooms in the order named, to reach 100 per cent student body membership.

The first G. U. H. S. debate of the school year is tentatively scheduled for the middle of October, announces Elmer Worthy, debating coach. The contest will be between the senior and junior classes, for the Anderson trophy. Later in the year the sophomores and freshmen will debate, and the winners of these two inter-class contests will compete for the cup.

Choice of the question for the junior-senior debate has been deferred until the plans for Glendale's first Southern California League debate of the season can be completed, which will be before the end of the week. All students wishing to try out for either inter-class debating or the junior or senior classes or league debating, are requested to give their names to either Mr. Worthy or Bonnie Jean Lockwood, secretary of debating.

Uniforms for Student Band Will Be Asked

It is planned to have uniforms for the high school band this year, announces Harold Roberts, director. A plan is on foot to have a pay assembly to raise the necessary funds. The band comprises thirty pieces, with Norman Nelson as student director.

A few more clarinet players are wanted but except for this the prospects are reported to be excellent. An interesting fact is revealed in that about 50 per cent of the band is composed of freshmen boys from the Harvard High school who come up here every day just for band. It is hoped by Mr. Roberts that a few more boys will sign up and swell the number of forty or fifty pieces, which will enable it to cope with any of the city high school bands.

High School Offers Class In Lip Reading

A class in lip reading for the hard of hearing is being offered this year in connection with the Glendale Union Night High school. Many who took the work last year have enrolled for the advanced course which is being given Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30 to 2:30 in Room 120 of the Harvard High. ENROLLMENT HIGH AT NIGHT SCHOOL

Increase of 50 Per Cent Over Last Year Is Seen In First Week's Work

The Glendale Union Night school boasts an enrollment of 612 at the end of the first week of school—an increase of fifty per cent over the enrollment for the same period last year. That the community is coming more and more to recognize the value of and the advantages of the night school is the opinion of the principal, A. L. Ferguson.

In an effort to extend the services of the night school, new courses are being added from time to time. Dramatics, public speaking and commercial law are being offered this year for the first time.

Harold L. Brewster is the instructor in the classes in public speaking and dramatics. He is especially trained for this type of work, being employed as instructor in these subjects in the day school and having appeared as a leading character in many local plays and having traveled during the summer with the Forest and Mountain players. The instruction which will be given in his classes will equal that which can be obtained anywhere in Southern California. Mr. Brewster states that there is still an opportunity for a few more to enroll in the classes.

Commercial Law

The course in commercial law is under the direction of Elmer T. Worthy, debating instructor in the high school. Mr. Worthy is well qualified for the work, having been actively engaged in legal work before coming into the high school. During the course all subjects which bear upon the legal relationships in business will be discussed from a practical standpoint. Knowledge gained through enrollment in this course will be invaluable to every business man or woman.

Persons who are interested in the evening school subjects may obtain further information concerning them by calling at the Harvard High school any Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday night from 7 to 9.

Girls Observe Rules For Uniform Dresses

The uniform board has great praise for the way the girls have lived up to the regulation dress rules, according to Helen Anderson, chairman. The only real difficulty has been in the matter of footwear and ties, she states.

The board has a system worked out wherein, if a girl appears in civilian clothes, she has her name written and then the number of times that she again appears in civilians is recorded after her name. After three times with poor excuses, the penalty is enforced.

This system enables the board to keep close watch and save confusion, as the girls are reported when they come to roll call.

A different board under the direction of Miss Anderson is in the office down at the Harvard Street High. This board meets with Mabel Irwin, faculty member during the roll call period, and the same system and rules apply there.

FURNISHINGS DESCRIBED FOR HOME

Mrs. Chase Explains Use of Proper Material for Room Decorations

The home, its arrangement and management, continued to grow in the interest of Glendale women, who heard Mrs. Florence Austin Chase this afternoon at the second session of The Glendale Evenings News' Better Homes, Better foods school in the Hahn auditorium.

In her better homes lecture opening the session Mrs. Chase described symphonies in color. There was, for instance, the room that was a symphony of browns and tans. Soft brown woodwork, soft tan walls, rattan furniture and orange hangings at the window that caught the glint of even the palest sunlight and diffused the warmth and color throughout the room. Then there was symphony of a living room with its jade green rug, its grey walls and its hangings of soft dull mulberry. Several other suggestions developed as questions came from the women intensely interested in the subject.

Practical Recipes

Mrs. Chase began her domestic science lecture by giving a practical illustration of correctly balanced meals, meals that proved to be not only correctly balanced, but attractive and appetizing. Mrs. Chase explained each step in their preparation and serving, illustrating economy of time by systematizing the work.

Tomorrow's Program

Tomorrow Mrs. Chase will talk on furnishing the living room and her domestic science illustrations will be appetizers, canapes and cocktails together with sandwiche and beverage, and as a special feature she will give French coffee cake.

Mrs. Chase invites questions. In order that the question may be answered intelligently, Mrs. Chase requests that they be plainly written and either handed to one of her maids or placed on her table on the platform. They will be answered during the afternoon.

Here's Wednesday's Program At Domestic Science School

Following is the program to be given tomorrow at the Better Homes, Better Foods school being conducted by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase at Hahn's Auditorium under the auspices of The Glendale Evening News:

HOME BEAUTIFUL

Furnishing the modest living room.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Appetizers—Cocktails, Canapes.
Sandwiches—For numerous occasions.
Beverages—Healthful and appetizing coffee; iced drinks.
French coffee cake, orange bread.
Note—Remember the question box and make use of it. Mrs. Chase invites questions and will gladly help you with your household problems.

First Session of Cooking School Complete Success; Award Prizes Each Day

Charm of home arrangement and management renewed its appeal to over 275 Glendale maids and matrons, who yesterday contacted the personality of Mrs. Florence Austin Chase at the first session of The Glendale Evening News Better Homes, Better Foods school in Hahn's auditorium at 109-A North Brand boulevard.

Mrs. Chase's fame as a better foods and better homes expert is nation-wide and Glendale women were most enthusiastic in their reception to her yesterday.

Although the thermometer was registering midsummer temperature, Mrs. Chase's refreshing personality, and her subjects of home decoration and salads combined in banishing thoughts of the enervating heat.

Details Complete

Everything had been arranged in the big hall for the comfort and convenience of Mrs. Chase, her assistants, school attendants and exhibitors.

The stage from which Mrs. Chase gives her lectures and demonstrations was arranged with an A. B. gas range from the Good Housekeeping store; a fine Hoosier kitchen cabinet from Belden's, and a commodious iceless electric refrigerator from the J. A. Newton Co. These were just a few of the modern household furnishings on hand for the inspection of Glendale women. All about the room were attractive exhibits by Glendale merchants, where housewives might find just the things designed to make modern housekeeping all our grandmothers dreamed it might be.

Number of Exhibits

Exhibits are arranged by the Brand boulevard nursery, Burr Creamery, Coker & Taylor, H. S. Webb Co., J. A. Newton Electric Co., Glendale Phonograph Co., Mason Electric, Wilson-Bell, Glendale Food & Health clinic, Good Housekeeping shop, Smith Electric Co., Belden Co., Jewel City Plumbing Co.

Among the ingredients used by Mrs. Chase yesterday was Orange Brand flour, made by Nichols-Loomis Co., Los Angeles, and furnished through the courtesy of Harry MacBain of Glendale.

Mrs. Chase's first lecture dealt with the home beautiful, the color scheme or schemes which furnish the background for the family life and activity. She stressed the importance of making this background artistic and interesting. Later she took up the value of salads and followed with several delightful dressing and salad recipes.

A special feature of the afternoon was carnations presented to everyone attending by Mr. Hawley of the Jewel City Plumbing Co., representing the Ward furnace.

Prizes Every Day

In addition to the attraction of Mrs. Chase's lecture and demonstrations were the lovely prizes awarded at the close of the school. Beautiful prizes are to be awarded at every session, and yesterday, when the numbers were drawn and the prizes awarded, astonishment and pleasure were registered by the holders of the fortunate tickets.

The twenty-six-piece set of silver, courtesy of the Walker Jewelry Co., value at $25, was won by Mrs. H. Ridsdale, 1015 South Columbus avenue; a beautiful bridge lamp, purchased from the Trice Furniture Co., value, $15, won by Geraldine Woolard, 212 South Columbus avenue; a $10 order for shoes at the Buster Brown Shoe Co., courtesy W. C. Winkler, Mrs. J. J. Alford, 640 West Lexington drive; bath room set, given by the Pendroy department store, value $6.50, Mrs. H. I. Lovell, 415 North Central avenue; cooking thermometer, given by Roberts & Echols Drug store, value $3, Mrs. J. C. Fox, 914 East Palmer street.

Commission Votes for Commercial Districts

The City Planning commission, at last night's meeting, held at the city hall, Chairman T. W. Watson presiding, voted to recommend that the City Council establish commercial districts on West Arden avenue, and on Western avenue, from Lake street to the west city limits.

The commission set for next Monday night, October 6, a hearing on the petition presented to the council for a zoning change on East Lexington drive, between Pacific and Columbus avenues, changing this district from first class residential to residential, so that apartment houses may be built there.

Ashton of 423 Myrtle street; Mrs. H. C. Westover of 1216 North Howard street; Mrs. George Chivis of Los Angeles. Mrs. W. Belt of 1348 East Maple street underwent major surgery this morning.

Secure Noted Actor For Stage Director

The Dobinson Players are declared to have been very fortunate in having secured the services of George C. Pearce as stage director of that company. Mr. Pearce has a record of achievement with such well-known theatrical people as Daniel Frohman, Henry Miller, William Faversham, Viola Allen and other prominent actors, and directed several plays including one by Rupert Hughes for the Shuberts. After coming to Los Angeles he played an engagement of thirty-three consecutive weeks with Lewis Stone at the Majestic Theatre. He also has worked in motion pictures. Mr. Pearce is a resident of Glendale, where he has made many friends. He plays the part of "Crickett" in "A Prince There Was," which starts at the Tuesday Club theatre tomorrow night.

Death rate from influenza is decreasing in England but that of cancer is growing.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE EXPERT TO SHOW STOVE'S FEATURES

Mrs. Florence Austin Chase Selects For Use Tomorrow at Cooking School, Range from J. A. Newton Electric Co.

The Garland cabinet gas range, for which the J. A. Newton Electric Co., 154 South Brand boulevard, is valley distributor, will hold full sway Wednesday afternoon at The Glendale Evening News Better Homes, Better Foods school, now being conducted by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase at Hahn's auditorium, 109-A North Brand boulevard.

Mrs. Chase will feature this range in all of her cooking demonstrations at that time and in such a manner that all of the outstanding advantages can be readily appreciated.

This stove, manufactured by the Michigan Stove Co. of Detroit, Mich., is, according to W. S. Hunter, manager of the stove department for the J. A. Newton Electric Co., the personification of the company's motto, "The World's Best."

Mrs. Chase Picks Stove

Mrs. Chase has selected for her use a four-burner and simmerer No. 10-9 Garland, an all white porcelain enamel range, equipped with the famous "Wil-Colator oven heat control. Featured on the dial of this control is a baking temperature schedule for all baking requirements, so that the necessity for following a printed chart is eliminated.

The broiler is built beneath the oven and both oven and broiler are constructed of "Wellsville" rust-resisting steel; in fact, it can be said that this range is constructed of this same material throughout with the exception of the shelf over the burners, which is of cast iron.

Economical, Powerful

The heat spreading burners of the Garland are economical and powerful. Through their use the flame is thrown to every part of the bottom surface of a cooking utensil so that there is not a spot that is not uniformly heated.

The manufacturers state that this burner furnishes approximately 150 degrees more heat than the ordinary gas burner, and that thereby the consumer realizes a saving of 10 per cent or more in his gas consumption.

When you visit the Garland exhibit at the Better Homes, Better Foods school, it has been suggested that you ask about the famous Garland policy of assurance, which is granted to all Garland owners.

Guests will find a number of different models in this stove at J. A. Newton Electric Co. booth, as well as numerous other household appliances. A representative of the company will be there and will be glad to take up with you in detail, the facts concerning any appliance in which one may be interested.

Steinmetz, the late electrical wizard, prophesied that people will not work more than four hours a day a hundred years from now.

Comment

By GIL A. COWAN

Hot stuff, this warm weather at the close of September, with a temperature of 102 in the shade in Southern California cities and a whole lot warmer out in the open spaces.

However, the more sunshine we have for the next two weeks, the greater the return on the growing crops. That means more prosperity for farmers, who already have profited by high prices.

With the west and middle west growers prospering, business conditions on the coast will be good this winter. And, while they haven't been bad, they can be a great deal better.

Inexperience in fighting hill fires the writer has no room to criticise, but from casual observation it would appear that authorities act first and think afterward.

For instance, the Hollywood hill fire brought forth a handful of fire fighters who did their best to stop the blaze and failed. Then someone thought of recruiting a large force, which arrived too late to save anything in the path of the flames until natural barriers were reached.

The same situation existed in Glendale a year ago, when much hillside land was burned over, with the loss of two lives. And then the day was saved by the Edison company throwing hundreds of workmen onto the line to save their private property.

Fighting fire is an expensive job, to say the least, but there should be some authority to immediately dispatch the necessary help to the scene of any conflagration. And implements should be kept in store for such emergencies.

Preparedness is the ONLY policy.

Today Glendale is voting on some important bond issues. Whether the voter favors this, that or the other, it is vital that he or she vote.

A few votes should not defeat the will of the people, even though they carelessly fail to attend to their civic duty as citizens.

It is good to note the large numbers who are registering each evening at The Glendale Evening News office in order that they may vote at the coming presidential election.

WE'RE ALL TOO APT—
To judge men solely by their faults.
To vote for the man who talks the most.
To begrudge our taxes and excuse our extravagances.

To talk first and think afterwards.
To condemn an idea because it is new.

STANDARDIZED MINDS

Comic strips, rotogravure sections and the like have been characterized as first aids to invalid imaginations. It is true that our imaginations are likely to suffer from lack of exercise as there is not much left for them to do. Advertisements, fiction stories, magazine articles and newspaper stories are all profusely illustrated. Modern books and stories, plays and films leave nothing to the imagination. Over the radio we all receive the same message at the same moment. Our minds are becoming standardized.

It follows naturally that anyone who holds different opinions from the mob is charged with being affected, or with having an axe to grind.

The San Bernardino Sun comments upon this tendency of the majority to deride the opinions of the minority, under the heading, "Those who do not goosestep." "There is a proverb to the effect that 'this would be a monotonous world if everybody were of the same opinion'," says the Sun. "The world may or may not be monotonous, but there is little doubt that it is virtually of one opinion. The masses think as one, and those who think apart from the masses represent a meagre minority.

"In a country where freedom of speech, thought and religion prevail (at least theoretically and constitutionally) the majority should respect the opinions of the minority."

One of the greatest sins that beset us is the sin of intolerance. We are so egotistical as to think that the one who differs from us must be wrong or must have unworthy motives in holding an opinion that conflicts with ours.

ARTS THAT ARE BEING LOST

Arguing that the supreme study is the study of man, Arnold Bennett, famous English novelist and essayist, comes to the defense of "small talk." Shutting ourselves in our rooms and studying the man of five hundred or a thousand years ago may help us to comprehend the peculiarities of the man with whom we are brought in contact today. But "small talk" is a much more direct means to the same end, for it teaches us about human nature and helps us to judge character. Also it distracts, unbends and stimulates the mind.

We often hear that the art of conversation is dying out. There was a time when, with two or more gathered together, a discussion of some subject, the latest book or play or current event was carried on with fluency and erudition. In those days we read and so we had something to talk about. But the phonograph, with its jazz records and the accompanying dance, the neighborhood theatre, the automobile and the radio have all helped to deal a blow to the art of conversation.

Likewise, letter writing is becoming a lost art. Who has not at least a few old letters that are being cherished as heirlooms and examples of an accomplishment of a by-gone day? These rather ponderous epistles were prepared with meticulous care as to penmanship, grammar and diction. The daily newspapers, the telegraph, the telephone and cheap postage are a few of the things that have contributed to the decay of letter writing.

A FULL LIFE

We get out of things pretty much what we put into them, and life itself is no exception to this rule. That we reap what we have sown has never yet been proved false. A writer says that if we expect life to be a bed of roses we must plant rose bushes.

It is futile to look for our ship to come in when we have never sent it out. It sometimes seems that success and wealth come to some people without any effort on their part. It may be that they have contributed to the venture things that we did not see, or it may be that what they have won is not the real thing, not the thing that will bring them happiness and contentment.

Nothing of real value ever comes to one who sits with folded hands and waits. Exertion of some kind is required and the things we get through our own efforts we can value at their true worth. Life would grow monotonous if it gave us just what we wanted merely for the asking. It is the fight we must put up that gives zest to life.

A young person looking forward to success in certain work must prepare himself for the work. If he finds success in his job he must first put into it the ingredients of success, thorough preparation, ability, integrity and hard work.

We can't take water out of an empty jug. We often hear that one is living a full life. That is because he has filled his life with the things that count.

MENTAL HYGIENE

Insurance companies are now taking cognizance of the importance of mental hygiene and are teaching their policy holders to guard their mental health as they do their physical health, for the latter is contingent upon the former. It is made plain that one who continues in wrong thinking cannot be well; that anger, hatred, envy, jealousy, fear, and malice lead to disaster. People who are ill often take all sorts of remedies and seek different climates, but find no relief because the source of their trouble is wrong thinking, false beliefs, distorted imagination or misdirected emotions. A healthy mind is essential for one who would have a healthy body.

TOO MUCH STRESS ON PARTY

How much better it would be for the country if the different political schools could work more in harmony. "It takes all kinds of people to make the world," and we need conservatives, progressives and radicals, each for a check on the other. But, if the time of each is to be taken up in fighting to make the world over according to his own particular pattern, no good can result. When the parties are engaged in a tug of war such as took place in the last Congress, they are not doing anything for the country. If Congressmen could think less about party and more about results their constituents would benefit greatly.

CALLS LA FOLLETTE DEMAGOGUE

All things are comparative. La Follette charges that both his opponents for the presidency are controlled by the big business interests. And now William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, says that La Follette is a demagogue and represents the capitalists as much as do the other candidates. "Only he represents the sentiment of the little capitalist, the element in America which strives to rise from the employe to the employer class," says Foster. "But, ultimately they all merge into the capitalistic regime. La Follette, to my mind, is the best friend of the capitalist class in America."

Cremation

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Against the custom of cremating the human body after death the prejudice seems to be lessening.

A conference on the subject was held by distinguished men of science, religion and other walks of life, recently in England.

Bishop Gore spoke in favor of cremation and his remarks were interesting not only because of their intrinsic force, but because of his position as a prelate in the Anglican church.

According to him, the only really logical contention against cremation was that it destroyed means of ascertaining whether a person had died by poisoning. From a sanitary and utilitarian point of view, the advantage of cremation could not be denied. The strongest position against it is that of sentiment. The Catholic church carefully excludes theological grounds from those upon which it is prohibited. The chief motive is a reverence for immemorial custom.

The Christian idea of the resurrection of the body does not in any way mean the preservation or reconstruction or recovery of the material particles of the present body, although this idea is implied in the phraseology of the Nicene creed.

The movement in favor of cremation is a part of the movement of sanitation and science against sentiment. Sentiment always holds in connection with the dead and it is very difficult to resist, yet the problem of disposing of dead bodies in large states is constantly growing more acute.

Those in favor of cremation depend upon logic, while those opposed to it are governed by sentimental reasons.

The conflict between logic and sentiment is universal and covers every phase of human progress. It takes time to accomplish any reform, especially when opposition to it is entrenched in the feelings.

As far as the resurrection of the body is concerned it would be as easy matter to gather the materials from the air, or from whatever place they have been scattered, as it would from the ground. Besides this, the fact that the particles of matter from the dead body go, in time, to the construction of new bodies renders a literal adherence to a bodily resurrection very difficult.

Just what the resurrection body will be is not known. It will be some sort of clothing for the human soul, but the matter had probably best be left where the Scriptures put it, which was that "There is a spiritual body and there is a natural body."

There can be no doubt, however, that cremation is the most sanitary and scientific method of disposing of human remains.

Horoscope

While Mercury and Mars are in benefic aspect today, according to astrology, Jupiter, Saturn Uranus and Mercury are all adverse. This is a day in which to exercise the greatest self control, for there may be many inclinations toward hasty and ill-considered acts.

There should be good luck following contracts for constructive work of any kind which are signed today, but there may be labor troubles precipitated at unforeseen times.

On this date there may be newspaper dispatches that are disquieting, tending toward uncertainty and even depression.

The mind should be kept in the most optimistic attitude, for there may be depression that is caused by events too far off to worry about now.

As the autumn advances the mind may be subject to frequent disturbance over apprehended troubles, because the public mind may be clouded.

If the seers are to be believed the world will have rather a bad time for another decade, but it is the problem of the white race to maintain the sort of domination that makes for spiritual progress.

The new moon this Month appears to promise great benefits to schools and places of amusement.

Diplomatic blunders and political disputes probably will multiply. At least one error on the part of a foreign minister may be serious in its consequences.

A wet and stormy October is prognosticated and farmers should prepare for unusual storms.

Shipping disputes and troubles related to commerce appear to be persistently foreshadowed.

The elevated position of Mars is evil for the King of England and the government.

A grave disaster in which royalty will be involved is forecast and there may be much illness among the British nobility.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be very careful in all business matters during the coming year, which may bring many problems. Changes will not be successful in all probability.

Children born on this day may meet with ups and downs, but these subjects of Libra usually have practical qualities blended with big talents. Success is easily attained by most of the girls as well as the boys, although they differ greatly in their characters.

Today's Poem

SONG

Oh! say not woman's heart is bought
With vain and empty treasure.
Oh! say not woman's heart is caught
By every idle pleasure.
When first her gentle bosom knows
Love's flame, it wanders never;
Deep in her heart the passion glows,
She loves, and loves for ever.
Oh, say not woman's false as fair,
That like the bee she ranges!
Still seeking flowers more sweet and rare,
As fickle fancy changes.
Ah, no, the love that first can warm
Will leave her bosom never;
No second passion e'er can charm,
She loves, and loves for ever.
—THOMAS LOVE PEACOCK.

DEFINITE ARRANGEMENT

A tailor had called to collect his bill frequently, but without success. Finally in desperation he said vehemently:

"Mr. Jones, I must insist that you make some definite arrangement with me."

"Why, surely," replied Mr. Jones agreeably. "Let's see. Well, suppose you call every Thursday morning."

RUSHING BUSINESS

"Well, Bloom," a physician asked a young colleague who was just starting in, "how's your practice?"

"In the mornings, practically no one comes," was the reply, "and in the afternoons the rush falls off a bit."

Who's Who

The retirement of General Willard Holbrook as chief of cavalry of the United States army caused the appointment of Major General Malin Craig to fill the vacant post. General Craig recently returned from service in the Philippines.

The new chief of cavalry was born in St. Joseph, Mo., August 5, 1875. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1898, was an honor graduate from the Infantry and Cavalry school in 1904, from the Grand Army Staff college in 1905, and Army War College in 1910.

General Craig served through the Spanish-American war from June, 1898, China Relief Expedition from June to October, 1900, was aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. Barry in the Philippines 1900-1, to Gen. Bell 1902-4, and was again in the Philippines 1907-9.

On October 5, 1917, he arrived in France and was appointed commander of the 166th brigade infantry, 83rd division 4th army corp, A. E. F., July 20, 1918, remaining in France in various commands until the close of the war when he returned to the United States and was made director of the General Staff College, Washington, D. C. In 1920-21 Gen. Craig commanded the District of Arizona, and Sept. 1, 1921, was made commander of the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kansas. He had been made brigadier general of the National Army in 1918; and of the regular army April 28, 1921.

France expressed her appreciation of Gen. Craig's services during the world war by decorating him as commander of the Legion of Honor and with the Croix de Guerre with two palms. He was made a Companion of the Bath by the British, commander La Couronne by Belgium, and Italy bestowed on him the Order of the Crown.

April 29, 1901, General Craig was married to Genevieve Woodruff of Berkeley, Calif.

Making Presidents

By H. Irving King

By H. IRVING KING

IN 1808
JAMES MADISON ELECTED

In the next presidential election—that of 1808—the electors voted for three candidates for president and five for vice-president. That was because of family rows in the Republican party.

Jefferson, about to retire at the close of his second term, wished James Madison of Virginia to be his successor—and what Jefferson said went. But when some members of the Virginia legislature held a caucus and presented Madison to the country as the Republican candidate another "bunch" held another caucus and presented James Monroe. Then the Republicans held a "Congressional caucus" and nominated Madison for president and George Clinton for vice-president. New York was rather peeved at this—she thought Clinton ought to have first place on the ticket. Madison had been a member of the Continental Congress, of the Constitutional convention, member of Congress from Virginia and had served as secretary of state under Jefferson. The Federalists put up their old ticket of Pinckney and King, though they held no caucus to nominate them.

Madison, of course, had a walkover. In the Electoral College he received 122 votes to Pinckney's 47, though New York insisted upon giving six of her nineteen votes to Clinton for president. As vice-presidential candidate, Clinton received 113 votes to King's 47; New York giving three of her votes to Madison for vice-president, just to indicate where she thought he ought to be on the ticket, and three to Monroe for the same position.

Vermont voted straight for Madison, but gave her vote for vice-president to John Langdon, as did also Ohio. Langdon was a great man in his day—soldier and patriot of the Revolution, the holder of many state and national offices, senator from New Hampshire, a presidential possibility. But who remembers Langdon now? How many, 116 years from now, will remember the prominent today as was Langdon in his times?

Madison's election was practically uncontested except in New England where the Federalists regained control of three states.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Jones Home After Five Months East and Abroad

Mr. and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones of 727 Kenneth road reached Glendale early this morning, after an absence of five months, spent in travel east and abroad. Miss Winifred Jones, who accompanied her parents, is spending several weeks visiting in Pennsylvania, New York and Chicago, before returning west. Traveling west with Mr. and Mrs. Jones was Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. M. Ewell Smith, who went east to meet them.

En route home, Mrs. Jones contracted a severe cold in Vancouver and will be confined to her home on Kenneth road for several days, unable to greet her friends until entirely recovered.

The Jones family visited France, Italy, Switzerland, Holland and in July attended the Bar association convention in London. Later they traveled in Ireland and Scotland. Upon landing in the United States they visited in Portland, Maine and other eastern cities, and came west by way of the Canadian Rockies.

3900 newcomers a day . . . where are the Homes coming from?

3900 visitors arrive in Los Angeles on an average day. One out of ten makes his permanent home here!

One out of every three homeseekers who come to the Pacific Coast settles within a hundred miles of Los Angeles!

This means a demand for homes—and more homes—for Chamber of Commerce figures show that more than one-third of the homes in Los Angeles are owned by their occupants, giving Los Angeles a national record.

But where is the money for homes coming from? The majority of it is being loaned by banks, mortgage companies and private investors—the present requirements for mortgages in Los Angeles County is estimated to be $1,000,000 daily. But the supply isn't equal to the demand.

Do you know that--

—one out of every three homeseekers who come to the Pacific Coast settles within a hundred miles of Los Angeles?

—the demand for money to build the homes needed is about twice the supply?

EXCESSIVE LAWS CALLED HARMFUL

A. D. Looney Tells Exchange Club Members Fault Of Constitution

Many persons who are in various legislatures of states throughout the United States are better qualified to handle a pick and shovel than they are to make laws, A. D. Looney, former police magistrate and business man of Boise, Idaho, told members of the Glendale Exchange club at the meeting held today noon at the Masonic temple. Mr. Looney spoke on laxity in laws and excessive legislation.

The desire for gain undermined the desire for reason in enacting laws, the speaker declared. He said there had been 113 amendments to the constitution of California adopted since it went into effect January 1, 1880.

He declared the constitution of the United States, which had stood for 135 years, would not stand for a similar period unless a halt were called. He pointed out a number of defects in city ordinances and declared the people of California had built a commercial wall around the state.

H. C. Hull Presides

H. C. Hull presided in the absence of President R. E. Johnston, who is attending the national convention in Nashville, Tenn. Telegrams from President Johnston were read at the meeting by Secretary T. F. Culhane.

Dr. H. R. Harrower, vice-president of the club, who has been abroad several months, will be back in time for the meeting next week it was announced and plans were made for a fitting welcome. A full attendance will be sought, and each member will be asked to bring a guest.

George Thomas reported the Exchange club had twenty-five automobiles in the bond parade yesterday. Pete Neise told of the third and deciding series of bowling games to be played with the Hollywood Exchange club team at Hollywood Thursday night. Milton Coye suggested that the initiation fee be reduced from $50 to $25 and the matter was referred to the board of directors. Several songs were sung by Clayton Clark. The attendance prize, donated by Dr. James A. Belyea, was won by Ralph E. Pierce. Harvey C. Bates, of the Glendale Radio service, donated the silent boost.

Prof. W. W. Ruble to Attend at Conference

B. M. Emerson, secretary-treasurer of the local conference, leaves tonight for San Diego to attend the conference there tomorrow of the Sanitarium board. He will return on Thursday. Professor Ruble will be gone a month or more.

Grass Fire Started Close to Griffith Park

A grass fire west of the city limits just across the Southern Pacific railroad and near Griffith Park caused some excitement among nearby residents this afternoon. The flames, however, were apparently started by workmen and intended to burn away the small growth along the low land there, which would prevent fire starting near the road and spreading into the foothills. The flames were not out of control though a strong wind was blowing.

Danish Explorer In Record Sledge Jaunt

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 30.—The longest sledge journey on record has just been accomplished by Dr. Lauge Koch, famous Danish explorer.

He has been surveying the last remaining unmapped portion of the Greenland coast, and his journey over glaciers and the dreaded ice cap occupied 200 days, during which he traversed 3600 miles entirely by sledge.

The expedition consisted of nineteen sledges, 200 dogs and a few selected Eskimos. Great hardships were suffered by men and dogs from the intense cold, while food ran short on the return journey. All but ten of the dogs died or were eaten.

Prison Artist Given Job In Penitentiary

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 30. Max Sasanoss, the celebrated artist, who "painted his way out of prison," has been secured to paint The Christus on the walls of the rotunda in the Kilby penitentiary.

Members of the Big Brothers Bible class of the First Presbyterian church here, are back of the movement, and officers of the organization announced that a state-wide drive will be made to raise funds for financing the proposed piece of art.

The artist will arrive in Montgomery soon, according to word from him at New York, and later will establish a studio at the prison.

Hawker's Remarks on Utah Not Appreciated

OGDEN, Utah, Sept. 30.—"I might as well be sitting in a graveyard as to try to sell anything in this hick town," yelled Harry Wilson, a street salesman of Salt Lake City, here when he was unable to make any sales after a long spiel. Several other uncomplimentary terms accompanied the statement which did not make a hit with several Ogden ladies near.

An Ogden policeman didn't like it, either.

And an Ogden judge didn't like it, either.

Hence Wilson is enjoying 60 days in jail instead of the graveyard in lieu of a $60 fine he was unable to pay.

Thousand Tractors In Shipment to Russians

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—One thousand tractors and other agricultural implements aggregating over 5,000 tons and valued at about a million dollars have been ordered by the Soviet Government for distribution in those parts of Russia where the consequences of the recurring droughts are aggravated by primitive methods of tilling the soil.

This is one of the largest shipments of American tractors destined for Russia. The purchase was effected through the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the sole agent in this country of the Russian State Import and Export Bureau.

SUES BOASTFUL HUBBY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Declaring her husband deliberately deceived her with stories of his achievements and caused her much embarrassment, Mrs. Harta Lena Vosebring filed suit for divorce today against Victor Vosebrink. The complaint recites that Vosebrink once told his wife he had obtained a $100,000 building contract, upon which development plaintiff bought expensive furniture and incurred other obligations, only to find, it is stated, that defendant's statements were false. She was forced to borrow money from her friends to pay current household expenses, plaintiff alleges.

Winners Drop Dignity And Game to Red Sox

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—With a steady stream of substitutes flowing on and off the diamond, Washington dropped a farcical game to the Boston Red Sox here this afternoon winding up the American league season. The score was 13 to 1.

The game reached its merriest heights in the seventh inning when "Uncle Nick" Altrock relieved Speece on the hill for the new American league champions.

Boston scored only one run off Altrock, who celebrated his first time at bat with a triple, scoring Washington's lone tally. Ferguson and Ehmke twirled for Boston. The Red Sox made merry at the expense of Speece, slamming him hard and frequently.

TURN TOWARD AMERICA

SALONIKA, Greece, Sept. 30.—More than 10,000 refugees in this area have registered for passage to America, where friends or relatives have raised the necessary funds for their trip. None of them can be accepted owing to the quota restrictions. The lost and found bureau of the Near East Relief, which has been active in securing employment for refugees, reports that 15,000 persons have been placed in 113 trades since the opening of its offices here. The demand for skilled artisans is greater than the supply, but unfortunately most of the urban refugees are of the clerical and small shopkeeper class together with many thousands of unskilled women and children. For these it is impossible to find employment.

RAISIN-FED HOGS

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 30.—Raisin-fed ham from California is expected to relegate the corn-raised product of the middle west to a secondary place, according to University of California experts in charge of the state farm at Davis, who are feeding shoats one and one-half pounds of raisins daily in addition to five pounds of mixed food and pasture in addition. It is believed that a new outlet has been found for cull raisins and the hogs are reported to be gaining weight rapidly on the new diet.

BLOWS SELF TO PIECES

DENVER, Sept. 30.—Bringing to a horrible reality his prediction that it "will not be necessary to bury me; I'll blow myself to pieces!" Zebulon Montgomery Pike, 51, of Morrison, Colo., committed suicide by holding a charge of dynamite in his hand.

Pike, a bachelor and long a victim of poor health, stood on the summit of Mount Glennon, overlooking Morrison, his home for many years, as he touched off the fuse to a stick of dynamite that blew one arm off and badly mutilated his body.

On his trip to Alaska the late President Harding delivered 61 addresses before his strength failed.

of the City Council at the American Legion meeting the night of October 7, at the Wilson school, when plans will be made for the Armistice day fiesta on November 11.

Vandewater, building superintendent, with those of heads of other departments allowed, that these officials may attend the convention of the California League of Municipalities, to be held at Asilomar from October 6 to 10.

It was voted on motion of Councilman S. A. Davis that hereafter when there is but one bid on street improvements, the city engineer shall so state when making his recommendations. It was voted to request the Los Angeles County Railroad Crossing committee to recommend a separated grade at Palmer avenue and Brand boulevard, on the Pacific Electric line.

Policeman to Collect Numerous 'Nut' Letters

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Introducing Officer Dan Stewart, the "psycho cop" of the Los Angeles police department.

A. I. Wilner, who wrote threatening letters to officers of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, was the first convicted by Stewart and today he is on his way to Norwalk or Patton or some other resort.

"There are thousands of nuts in Los Angeles," Police Chief R. Lee Heath has been informed. All "nut" letters will go to Stewart as evidence.

Japan Gains Victory In Protocol Compromise

council should attempt conciliation even after an arbitration decision has been rendered.

This was a victory for Japanese diplomacy.

Japan's greatest accomplishment was to change the protocol's definition of aggressor to say:

"A state can only be assumed to be an aggressor if it has not previously submitted the question in dispute to the league council or to the assembly in accordance with the article 11 of the League of Nations covenant."

The league assembly will meet in plenary session tomorrow morning to hear the protocol read by the committee. Debate will then open.

The judicial sub-committee, upon which both Japan and the British dominions are represented, met at 3 o'clock and unanimously adopted the aggressor formula.

Offers Comment

M. Politis of Greece, chairman of the first commission, introduced the formula with the following comment:

"Two changes in Articles 5 and 6 of the arbitration protocol satisfy all the legitimate Japanese demands without weakening any of the given securities which other states should obtain from the protocol.

"It is imperative to include in the protocol the last chance a state in dispute with another over domestic questions should have to enable a settlement of the quarrel through pacific means before being called an aggressor."

The first commission met in plenary session at 4:45 o'clock.

Cousin of Czar Now Working In U. S. Bank

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Another royal fugitive from soviet rule has been discovered working in the United States. He is Prince Dimitry, a nephew of the late czar and a cousin of the Prince of Wales. He is working as assistant to the manager of the foreign exchange department of the National American bank, in New York. He came here, according to friends, at their urging, after having been found working for a farmer in Denmark.

Prince Dimitry declared he hoped some day to return to Russia "and give my countrymen the benefit of what I have learned here."

Drapery Display Big Feature of Exposition

Considered from the standpoint of beauty and artisticness, it would not be out of place, perhaps, to say that the exhibit of drapes entered by Webb's department store at the Better Homes, Better Foods school, now being conducted by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase under the auspices of The Glendale Evening News, is by far the "star" of the show. This, of course, is readily appreciated when it is understood that practically all of the exhibits are displays of various kinds of home appliances and kitchen equipment.

For the past year or more, Webb's has made a specialty of its drapery department, which is located on the first floor of the store, and is under the supervision of W. Hutchinson, who, besides being a graduate of an interior decorating school, has had years of experience in this line of work. The drapery department at Webb's met with almost instant approval of the public, asserts Dale Ludwig, advertising manager for the store, as it has had to be enlarged several times during its short life and now it has its own contract work room on Wilson street, where everything in the line of drapes is made specially to order.

The service of this department, Mr. Ludwig says, has kept stride with its sales, and all that a customer has to do now is simply phone. A representative calls with samples; after their selection he makes the measurements and then submits the estimates. After the order is given, the measurements are verified, the drapes are made and hung and there is absolutely no further charge than the original cost of the material, provided it is not less than 85 cents per yard.

A new fall stock of drapes is now on display at this store and a cordial invitation is extended by Webb's to the public to call and inspect the line.

"We are always glad to show you," says Mr. Hutchinson, "and we don't want anyone to feel under obligation to buy, just because they inspected our stock."

Electric Refrigerator Attracting Attention

Outstanding in the equipment designed for the modern kitchen and prominently displayed upon the platform by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase in her Better Homes, Better Foods school is the SerVel electric refrigerator, furnished through the courtesy of the J. A. Newton Electric Co. The SerVel shown is known as the "home size" model, and is designed to fulfill the requirements of the average American family. This refrigerator is entirely automatic in its operation and maintains a temperature of 42 to 46 degrees in the refrigeration chamber while in the freezing chamber a temperature of 13 degrees above zero is sustained. Foods or produce of any kind can be frozen solid if put in this chamber.

There are eight individual drawers for the freezing of individual cubes of ice for table consumption. It is asserted that the SerVel electric refrigerator is fast taking the place of the old cake of ice method because in addition to the dollars' and cents' saving in ice purchases, there is the wonderful convenience, cleanliness and positive control of temperature, and the correct preservation of all foodstuffs. The Newton Co. invite your inspection.

To teach Japanese the advantages of electricity, a two-story house, having one-half of the rooms furnished according to Japanese methods and the other half in accordance with present-day western ideas, has been built near Tokyo for exhibition purposes.

Very Latest Products In Music World Shown

A special exhibit by the Glendale Phonograph Co., 109 North Brand boulevard, is proving the source of a great deal of interested attention on the part of many visitors at The Glendale Evening News Better Homes, Better Foods school, now being conducted by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase in Hahn's auditorium, 109-A North Brand boulevard. Featured in the exhibit are the very latest things —the very latest products of the musical world. There are several things, according to manager W. G. Bode, which have never been shown before, with the possible exception of the store's display window.

For instance, there is the Kennedy XV, a new Kennedy five tube radio set, which is the only one, declares Mr. Bode, that is constructed under the regenerative principle of reception, and which is recognized as by far the most superior for successful long distance reception.

"This new radio," says Mr. Bode, "is due for a wonderful future, not only for its splendid performance, but also for the fact that it can be built in handsome cabinets, consoles, etc."

Another type of radio equipment featured is the NR-5 Neutrodyne, the same machine that is now used by the United States navy. Incidentally, the Glendale Phonograph Co. is exclusive dealer in San Fernando valley for this machine.

One of the latest things from the musical world and being displayed at the company's booth is the Brunswick Radiola, a combined phonograph and radio. In this machine all the wonderful features of the Brunswick phonograph and all the best products of the Radio Corporation of America are combined into one excellent machine.

The Gulbransen registering piano has also added its bit to the pleasure and enjoyment of the visitors at the auditorium. So perfect have both popular and classical numbers been played that many hearers were dumfounded when told that the Gulbransen registering piano was the source of the music. Representatives of the Glendale Phonograph Co. are present each afternoon during school sessions and will gladly provide any information desired concerning their line.

Danish farmers are the only ones in the world that fix the price of the products they raise.

Superstitions Denounced

The U. S. Government has denounced as fraudulent the claims of certain concerns that so-called mineral water, or spring water has any curative value over ordinary water.

"Lithia water," "radium water," "spring water" and "mineral water" are humbugs from a medicinal point of view.

The purest and most wholesome water obtainable for general use is Puritas, standard for twenty-seven years in thousands of homes.

Due to the prolonged dry weather, the County and State Boards of Health have issued a warning regarding drinking water. Be sure that you use absolutely pure water. Water from pools, springs, lakes, streams, may contain dangerous impurities and contaminations.

Puritas customers have the use of sanitary iceless coolers without charge or deposit.

Electric Washer Is Featured at School

"A clean bill of health," says Thomas I. Smith, manager of the Smith Electrical Co., 629 East Broadway, "is largely a matter of wearing clean clothes. It is with this thought in mind that we are featuring the Universal electric washer in our exhibit at The Glendale Evening News Better Homes, Better Foods school now being held in Hahn's auditorium at 109-A North Brand boulevard.

"This is a machine which we believe to be superior in every respect for it has several exclusive features. For instance the Universal does its work without working the user. It takes care of the washing and requires no caretaker. And when it washes, it cleans thoroughly."

The booth of this company is in charge of Mr. Bagley representing the manufacturers of "Universal" home appliances. The Glendale women are urged to inspect this unusual exhibit while visiting the school. Several very valuable prizes are to be awarded by the Smith Electrical Co. next Friday afternoon, the last day of the demonstration. One may register at the booth any afternoon between now and Friday, October 3.

Hartman Market Will Show Meat Cutting

Glendale housewives who attended The Glendale Evening News Better Homes, Better Foods school this afternoon heard the announcement that on tomorrow's program a meat-cutting demonstration would be given which would show the proper manner in which to prepare roasts and steaks.

The demonstration will be given by the Hartman Market. 135 South Central avenue. Nearly one-half of a beef will be cut up and the various cuts and their respective food values will be thoroughly explained.

Woman Without Country

MRS. MARY BOGDONOFF is a woman without a country. The tangle is caused by immigration laws. She is now in San Francisco awaiting decision from the authorities as to whether she may remain in the United States.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. — Mrs. Mary Bogdonoff has a close kinship with Everett Edward Hale's famous character, "The Man Without a Country." She is a woman without a country. When she, an Australian-born woman, married an American citizen, she forfeited her British citizenship, but she did not become an American. The tangle is the result of immigration laws. She is in San Francisco anxiously awaiting a decision from Washington as to whether she can be admitted to the country and join her husband.

REPORT SALES IN NEW CORPORATION

Responses to Offerings of Concern Are Unusual, Officials Declare

So unusually gratifying has been the response to the opening announcements of the Gibraltar Finance corporation, the local offices of which are at 218 South Brand boulevard, that a successful future is assured this most needed of organizations, officials of the company state.

Those to whom this proposition has been presented have realized that the securities in this corporation are almost without a parallel, so far as safety and earning power are concerned, they say. These purchasers know what earning power the company has, it is pointed out, and they know, for example, that a trust deed for $1000 is discounted as much as 25 per cent or $250. On the $750 paid out the company therefore makes 33 1-3 per cent, in addition to the extra interest paid on the entire $1000, it is said.

A loan made today may be sold tomorrow, making a quick turnover, officials declare. Another source of profit is the placing of first mortgages on improved property, at discounts of from 5 to 10 per cent, then selling them to private investors without discount, it is said.

Hold Essay Contest

The essay contest put on by this concern will close October 20. In this contest $300 is being given away in three prizes for the three best letters on the question, "Why Is the Stock of Finance and Mortgage Companies in General and the Gibraltar Finance Corporation in Particular, an Investment That Cannot Be Surpassed?"

A 300-word letter on this subject can be written in an hour, and it may win one of the prizes. Those wishing specific data about this concern for use in these letters may secure an instructive folder by addressing the company at the local office, 218 South Brand boulevard, or telephoning Glendale 4553-J. This offer is "stringless," and absolutely bona fide, it is declared.

Household Appliance Demonstration Given

Featured by the Mason Electrical Service, 113 North Brand boulevard, at its booth in The Glendale Evening News, Better Homes, Better Foods school is the Hurley Thor line of household appliances, one of the most serviceable lines of labor-saving appliances, it is declared.

Interest is centering around a special demonstration of the Hurley Thor Automatic Electric Ironer. Daily demonstrations which serve to bring out every advantage of the machine are being made by a competent operator.

How to iron small pieces, such as towels, handkerchiefs; napkins, etc., is shown. For this work the Thor Ironer is equipped with a special speed while an even pressure on the roll is maintained at all times, yet a touch on the small dial control releases the pressure instantly.

Large swivel casters make the machine easy to move into any out of the way corner when not in use. Women are invited to ask any questions desired or for a demonstration at any time. All will be given prompt, courteous attention.

AUTO THIEF EPIDEMIC

HONOLULU, Sept. 30.—Sheriff David K. Trask will ask the supervisors for twenty additional policemen to patrol the city as plainclothes men, in an effort to stop an epidemic of auto thieving. The sheriff is of the belief that most of the thefts are by boys who want to use the cars for joy riding.

Food & Health Clinic Makes Special Exhibit

In line with the name, Better Homes, Better Foods, which has been selected to designate the demonstration of foods and home appliances by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase, under the auspices if The Glendale Evening News, is the special exhibit of the Glendale Food and Health Clinic at Hahn's auditorium. To enhance its service to the public this company is maintaining this booth at the school in order to drive home some of the real meaning of "better foods."

Most sickness, it is declared, can be traced to some disorder of the stomach and it is only in preventing and healing these disorders that health can be maintained. Proper foods eaten at the right time are deemed a great factor in creating health, and it is here that the service of the Glendale Food and Health Clinic comes in. The use of whole grain wheat twice a day is advocated by this concern; in fact, a challenge is issued to anyone to use whole grain wheat twice a day for twenty-four days and then truthfully deny a definite and distinct all-'round improvement, both physically and mentally. If an improvement is not acknowledged, the company guarantees the return of the purchase price of the food.

Locating in Glendale some few months ago, this company now has in excess of 2500 enthusiastic users of whole grain wheat in Glendale. Courteous attendants are at the booth during the daily session of the school, and will gladly explain not only the theory, but the actual practice and results obtained by the use of whole grain wheat.

Good Housekeeping to Award Special Prize

To give added interest and attention to their booth, at The Glendale Evening News Better Homes, Better Foods school now being conducted by Mrs. Florence Austin Chase in Hahn's auditoriom, 109-A North Brand boulevard, Good Housekeeping shop yesterday announced a special contest with an attractive set of aluminum cooking utensils as the prize.

All that is necessary to participate in the contest is for visitors to register at their booth. On next Friday afternoon, which is the closing day of the school, a drawing will be held and the name of some person registered during the week will be declared the winner.

Manager George Schoberlin of this enterprising concern, urges every visitor to make it a point to be sure and visit "Good Housekeeping shop's exhibit.

To encourage the use of domestic coal, the Austrian Coal Owners' association had a display of their products at the Vienna fair this fall.

IS VACCINATION HARMLESS?

Is vaccination absolutely free from danger? Not any more than a scratch of any kind is absolutely free from danger. We have heard of pin pricks and razor scratches and the cutting of corns resulting in deaths. The danger from vaccination is due to the same reason for such accidents—that unless proper care is taken, the vaccination may become infected.

Before the government inspection of vaccine was installed and before the extreme care and cleanliness which are now used in the manufacture of vaccine was practiced, sometimes the vaccine itself caused infection. Now, however, a bad sore arm is a rare occurrence and serious complications still rarer. Compared to the benefits derived by vaccination the dangers are infinitesimal.

There have been a few cases of tetanus following vaccination. The fact that lack of care is the biggest factor in these few cases is shown by the figures from the United States Army and Navy which show a record of millions of vaccinations without a single case of tetanus.

Special tests for tetanus of evquired by federal regulation. If placed on the market are now required by federal regulation. If with the care that is used in preparing the vaccine, there is proper care after vaccination, there is no danger from tetanus.

In more than five million consecutive vaccinations in England, Acland says there was but one case of tetanus, and in this one case there was no evidence that it was in the vaccine.

When human vaccine was used it was shown that syphilis, and tuberculosis and other diseases might be transmitted, but this you do not have to think of at all for the vaccine that is used now is bovine vaccine. (I told you last week how vaccine is made.)

I would not mention these complications at all were they not so grossly exaggerated in the anti-vaccination literature. However, it is just as well for you to know that there is a danger if you allow the wound to become dirty and infected—just as there is a danger in allowing any wound to become dirty and infected.

Vaccination does not make an arm sore, even if it is not infected. But isn't it preferable to have this one vaccination sore on the arm than to run the possibility of having one thousand running, suppurating sores all over the body and a general disease which may cause blindness, deformity of the face and in many cases, death? Vaccination does protect against smallpox. It was vaccination that caused smallpox to cease becoming scourges in civilized nations, not sanitation, as the anti-vaccinationists claim. If it were sanitation, why is it that as our sanitation has steadily advanced, we are now having epidemics of smallpox, pretty serious ones, too? The reason that smallpox has again become a problem is that it is always found that after the immunity that has been conferred on the public by general vaccination, the people begin to believe that smallpox has ceased to be a serious problem.

Now let me give you some data t oshow you why we believe that having cowpox, which you get when you are successfully vaccinated,—probably a modified form of smallpox, but one which is very mild and non-dangerous—will cause your system to manufacture a defense which will protect you against the dangerous and loathsome and many times fatal form of smallpox.

Fifty thousand deaths from smallpox in the Phillipines during the last few years. Ninety-three per cent, of these were among the unvaccinated and only 7 per cent among the vaccinated. This 7 per cent might not have died had it not been that a very virulent strain of smallpox had developed among the unvaccinated producing an infection which to show you why we believe that the ordinary immunity was unable to combat when the effective systematic vaccination was re-established in 1918, smallpox again disappeared.

Here are a few other figures which show how vaccination protects. In Sweden, where there is a compulsory vaccination law, the average deaths is one per million of population and in Spain, where there is no compulsion, nearly 1,000 to the million.

April 8, 1874, Germany passed a general vaccination and revaccination law. In 1897 there were but eight deaths from smallpox in the entire German Empire, population 54,000,000. In 1913 there were only 90 cases, of which 39 were foreigners. During the World War, because of the large number of Russian prisoners, there was a marked increase of smallpox in the civil population. But in the huge German army there were only two deaths from smallpox from 1874-1914. One of these was a reservist who had not been successfully vaccinated. There are many other figures that I could give you of different countries, but these will suffice.

SALAD DAYS

If I were a diet specialist, which I am not, I would tell you that there's a salad for almost every ailment. Ask professional dieticians—those clever, young girls who leave college, after four years devoted more to chemistry, physiology, hygiene and such things rather than to Latin and Greek, to earn large salaries—and they'll tell you the wonders that salads and fresh greens and whole grain foods accomplish in a worn-out human system.

I know enough of the subject, however, to advise you about salads to clear the skin and to reduce. Anyway, here are some suggestions:

If you've a bad skin, any salad is good, for lettuce itself is a tonic for poor complexions and the oil of the mayonnaise is fine, too. Make a salad with lettuce, boiled diced and cold carrots, and green peas and mayonnaise; or use beans, when peas fail, or apples chopped into tiny cubes. And heaps of mayonnaise.

If you're sleepless, eat a lot of lettuce with a little French dressing on, toward bedtime. Lettuce makes you sleep. If you suffer from neuritis or arthritis, eat a whole small, or half a large lettuce head, without dressing, with your toast and coffee at breakfast. If you're chronically constipated, eat lots of mayonnaise, for the olive oil will help you. If it doesn't, use white, tasteless mineral oil instead of olive (the mayonnaise will seem the same, but it will be a laxative).

If you want to reduce, eat lettuce with a little salt and vinegar for dressing, instead of your beloved potatoes. If you want to grow fat, eat more mayonnaise on your salad, and make salads of potatoes, corn, beans, bananas, grapes, apples—anything you like but cucumbers.

Dumpy—You probably do not choose the right kind of food for reduction or you would not be adding to your weight. The fattening foods are those containing much starch, sugar, or oils. Try whole wheat or gluten bread, instead of that made from white flour. Give preference to green vegetables and salads during the summer months, and eat sparingly of all foods that are starchy.

B. E. B.—A weekly treatment such as you describe will be beneficial to your skin. In large cities, or even small ones, where there is soft coal burned there is so much soot to settle on the skin that a special cleansing of the pores should be given at least once each week in addition to the regular daily care.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Prize Fish Story Is Offered; Catch In Jar

FULTON, N. Y., Sept. 30.—To catch a pickerel held captive in a jug is the Waltonian claim to fame today of George W. Hill, Jr., of this city.

Here's Mr. Hill's banner fish story of the year:

"I was fishing with worms as bait and trying to catch some Jack Perch at Fair Haven Bay. All of a sudden I felt a sharp bite. In pulling in the line the weight caused the line to weave, making me think I had hooked onto a heavy log. Upon getting the hook to the surface I discovered my hook and sinker had dropped into the neck of an old jug. It was necessary to break the jug, when, to my surprise, I found the worms had been grabbed by the pickerel which was on the inside of the jug.

"The only account I can give for the captivity of the fish is that when it was a small minnow it was hibernated in the jug, and as it grew it was too big to get out."

Use Airplanes to War On Malarial Mosquito

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The same specially built airplanes which so successfully combated the boll weevil in the vicinity of Tallulah, Louisiana, have again been put to use by the Army Air Service in the extermination of malarial mosquitoes in the south.

Some regions were found which were very swampy and badly infested with mosquitoes. Accordingly the Air Service plane was stocked with a supply of Paris green heavily diluted with Tripoli earth, and poison dust was sprinkled from it all over the swamp, a large portion of which would otherwise have been inaccessible. Trees did not interfere with the sprinkling, for the machines flew sufficiently high to avoid contact and circled them in applying the mosquito killer to the surrounding bog.

The United States Public Health Service recommends the use of Paris green, highly diluted with road dust, or some similar substance, and the Air Service offers a wholesale method of application.

U. S. Inhabited 50,000 Years Ago, Is Claimed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 30.—Fossil forms recently unearthed in this country indicate the United States was inhabited 50,000 years ago, Dr. George B. Gordon, of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, claims.

"Recent discoveries in the section of the Middle West running from St. Louis northward to the Great Lakes, show that people in ancient times had started several cities. These cities were laid out somewhat like those of the present day, except that there was virtually half a mile between houses. Of course, the houses have crumbled, but the excavators found traces that such cities existed," Dr. Gordon said.

Celery Bouillon: Buy a three-pound knuckle of veal. Cut this in small pieces, bone, and put it into a soup kettle with two quarts of cold water, one-half teaspoon of peppercorns, a tiny piece of bay leaf, one minced raw onion, and the outer stalks of one bunch of celery minced, and let it come slowly to a boil, then simmer for four hours. Add salt (about two teaspoons) after it has cooked for two hours. Replenish water as it evaporates, so as to keep the same amount of liquid. Strain when done and let stand till fat can be removed, then clear by adding the crushed shells of three eggs and heat to boiling point, stirring constantly (as the soup heats the egg coagulates and collects the fine particles floating in the soup. Let boil vigorously for five minutes, add a little cold water, let cool slightly, then skim and strain through cheesecloth. (This is the method of clearing any soup stock.) Reheat and add one cupful of diced and cooked celery to each serving.

Pineapple-Tomato Salad: This makes an especially dainty salad. The ingredients are six slices of ripe tomato, one cup of diced canned pineapple, one cup of diced raw celery, a little minced parsley and Mayonnaise dressing. Arrange each portion separately on salad plates, first putting a slice of tomato on a bed of crisp lettuce, then topping the tomato slice with a little pineapple and celery mixed together with Mayonnaise dressing. Top with an extra dab of the dressing and serve chilled. This recipe makes six individual portions.

Orange-Rice Pudding: Scald a few pieces of plain orange peel with three cups of sweet milk and one-half of boiled rice. Then remove the peel from the milk, discarding it, and add to the milk two egg-yolks which have been beaten with a pinch of salt and one-half cup of granulated sugar. Cook over hot water till thickened, stirring constantly, then remove from range, cool, and chill. Just before you serve it, fold into it the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs sweetened with two tablespoons of confectioner's sugar and flavored with one teaspoon of orange juice.

BUTTERFLY

By KATHLEEN NORRIS. Copyright, 1924.

CHAPTER LXV

Dora went straight upstairs without a word. Hilary saw Craig turn into his library; she followed her sister, and after some hesitation, when she herself was undressed, went into Dora's room to say good night.

Butterfly was in bed, everything was dark, Emma was gone. Hilary did not offer to kiss her; she knew Butterfly. She stood fastening the little frogs of her oriental gown, anxious and at loss.

"Good night, dear."

"Good night."

That was all. Hilary went into the hall again. Through Mrs. Spaulding's half-opened door a light was showing; the girl pushed it gently open, and went in. Craig's mother was sitting wide awake in bed, in a deep purple wadded jacket, with her grizzled hair in curl papers. In Mrs. Spaulding's youth all girls had worn chignons and crimps and bangs and follow-me-lads; she had continued to curl her hair through even her sensible middle-age, without ever considering it more of an artifice than washing her face.

She knew, of course, that something was wrong. Hilary sat on the foot of her bed, and told her everything. Mrs. Spaulding listened with a grim and grimmer face.

"This is the end for Craig and Butterfly, Hilary!" she said, at last, with a deep sigh.

"Butterfly didn't realize what she was doing!" Hilary protested, anxiously. "She's in bed now, and Craig's in the library. I was wondering — wondering — if I could talk to him. I understand Butterfly!"

"Better let me talk to him," his mother said, reaching for wrapper and slippers. "I understand him!" Well, my dear, things turn out unexpectedly sometimes, and you mustn't let this spoil your happiness! I believe you are a fortunate woman; he is a nice, simple, unspoiled fellow. This thing with Craig and Dora may blow over—I hope it will, and then we shall have time to rejoice with you!"

She padded downstairs, and Hilary, worried and weary, went to her own room. But the worry vanished, and the weariness mysteriously fled, the moment she was alone. Craig, even Butterfly, was nothing, in this great tide of amazement and incredulity and grateful happiness that overwhelmed her. She got into bed at last, and sat wakeful, electrified, hugging her knees—thinking, thinking, thinking.

Meanwhile, Craig's mother went into the library, to find him sunk in a chair, brooding. He got up and gave her a chair, his face dark with gloom.

"Craig, my dear, I am very sorry for this," Mrs. Spaulding said, reaching for a big silk bag on the table, and beginning to knit comfortably, as if the hour and the occasion were quite usual.

"Thank you, Mother."

"What do you suppose possessed the child to lose her head over Kronski, with all the rest of the young idiots!" Mrs. Spaulding observed, mildly, flinging her yarn free.

"I'm sorry, but I really can't discuss it, Mother," Craig said, bitterly and repressively.

"Knowing him," his mother pursued, thoughtfully, after a pause, "one can see exactly how his kindly, patient sort of friendliness would mislead her."

"I don't blame Kronski in the least!" Craig said, briefly, angry at himself for conceding even so much to her desire to talk it all over.

"No, neither do I. And I don't blame Butterfly much," Mrs. Spaulding said, purling busily.

Craig smoked on in resolute silence for perhaps a moment. Then he burst out suddenly, and against his will:

"Oh, no—perfectly natural! To rush to a man's rooms in the middle of the night, to ask him if he loves her!"

"That is really part of her simplicity, of her honesty," Mrs. Spaulding offered, seriously. "There's no artifice to Dora. It must be all or nothing. She got excited, got jealous—it was a child's act. Dora is not yet twenty-two. She did what the others did, poor child. These silly affairs are going on all the time in her crowd. Only she hadn't the experience to manage it. It's regrettable; it's disgusting, I think. I always have thought so. I'd as soon try to draw away a woman's children as her husband, myself. But I think you'll make a great mistake to pay too much attention to this, my dear. Especially as it's going to hurt Hilary bitterly—Kronski's in love with her. Dora'll sulk for a few days, and then come to her senses—her vanity is really all that was touched. Keep the surface smooth, Craig, and wait. In a few weeks, when we know what Hilary plans to do, then if you and Butterfly really can't make a success of it, there'll be plenty of time to decide!"

She replaced her knitting, rose to her feet, and patted his bowed shoulder. Craig did not move as she went slowly from the room. But when she reached the bottom of the big staircase he was suddenly behind her, and kissed her gratefully.

"Good-night, Mother, and thank you!"

"Good night, dear. Don't sit up too late. Get your sleep."

"Yes, I will. Banks, put out the lights and lock up, will you?" Craig said, summoning the impassive butler. "I am going upstairs."

Hilary awakened in a bath of sunlight, to find the clock at the incredible hour of ten. She had lain awake for a long time, in the night, before getting to sleep, her thought wavering to Butterfly and to Craig, sometimes, but always homing, with that new deep sense of amazement and joy, to Konrad. But sleep, coming at last, was the sweetest she had ever known.

Alice was moving softly about the room, and came to the bedside carrying a florist's box tied with shiny, narrow purple ribbons. Hilary smiled, sat up, and slipped her arms into a jacket.

"Is Mrs. Spaulding, Mrs. Craig, up yet, Alice?" she asked, pleasantly indifferent in tone.

"Emma said she had a headache," Alice answered, her appreciative eyes, and Hilary's, feasting upon the damp, fragrant violets as they were lifted from their silky layers of tissue-paper. The sweet, strong, delicious odor drifted through the room. Russian violets, and six words in French on Konrad's card. Hilary felt the sun was suddenly brighter, and that the opening day trembled with ecstatic possibilities.

At half-past twelve o'clock she was to meet him for luncheon. She could barely touch her breakfast tray, excitement quivered in her veins, and life was centered upon the golden moment when she should walk into the foyer of the big Fifty-ninth Street hotel, and see Konrad there, waiting for her.

MURPHY'S COMEDIANS

"Bought and Paid For," will show tonight at the well-known tent theater at the corner of Central avenue and Stocker street, Casa Verdugo, announces J. A. Menard, manager of Murphy's Comedians. The company will then go to San Diego, where they will open on October 5 for a three months' engagement, while their permanent theater is being built by J. B. Brown & Co., on the site of the present tent.

The play "Bought and Paid For," is generally conceded to be one of the most successful that has ever come to the American stage, seeming to combine every element necessary to a big dramatic hit, theme, plot, situation and crisis, with plenty of good, wholesome humor to carry along the more serious moments.

As Murphy's Comedians present it, "Bought and Paid For" is the equal of many a Broadway, New York, attraction and clearly shows why these players have earned their popularity during their half-year in and around Glendale.

THE GATEWAY

Art lovers are besieging Lou Tellegen, internationally famous star of stage and screen, to place on exhibition specimens of his ability as a sculptor, an art in which he is equally as proficient as the one in which the public knows him best—the stage and screen. Although not generally known in the same measure as is his work as an actor, Tellegen is a sculptor of no mean ability, and if he so desired he could qualify as a sculptor of world-wide promise.

As a pupil of the celebrated Mennier, foremost Belgian sculptor, and later as both pupil and warm friend of the great Rodin, with whom he lived for two years, Tellegen attracted the attention of the foremost sculptors and art critics of Europe.

Modeling has been his foremost diversion all during his stage career, and in his latest picture, "Between Friends," which is being shown at the Gateway Theatre tonight, he is cast as a sculptor. Thus, in the actual filming of the picture, the work of Tellegen took on a new significance because to him it was real. This popular star has kept hidden a great art, according to his friends, who insist that he display some of his best works that the world may know his versatility.

THE T. D. & L.

D. W. Griffith's "America" concludes today at the T. D. & L. Theater. Wednesday to Saturday inclusive the feature is Frank Lloyd's great First National attraction, "The Sea Hawk," from the stirring novel by Rafael Sabatini.

THE GLENDALE

Tom Mix in "Ladies to Board" continues at the Glendale Theater.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FALLING LEAVES

"Uncle Wiggily, I wish you wouldn't go out adventuring today," said Nurse Jane to the bunny rabbit one morning, as soon as he began to twinkle his pink nose.

"Why not?" he asked. "Always you could tell when he was going adventuring by the way his pink nose twinkled. "Why shouldn't I go, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy?"

"Oh! I had a very strange dream about you last night," said the muskrat lady. "I dreamed you were out in the woods hanging up my clothes for me and all the clothes fell off the line!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny. "Why, that's a good dream!"

"How so?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Dreams, you know, always go by contraries," said Uncle Wiggily. "Your dream is a sign, perhaps, that some ripe, red apples are going to fall into my pocket when I hop over the fields, and I'll bring the apples home to you."

"Well, I hope nothing happens," sighed Nurse Jane as the bunny hopped away from his hollow stump bungalow.

Now, though he had laughed at Nurse Jane, Uncle Wiggily was not a little worried over that dream of hers. He pretended he didn't believe in dreams, yet—

"Suppose something should happen to me?" thought Mr. Longears. "Suppose one of the bad chaps should really catch me at last? Burr-r-r! I don't like to think about it!"

So he hopped faster and faster, wishing he might find an apple tree and get some of the red-cheeked fruit for Nurse Jane as he had jokingly promised. Then Uncle Wiggily came to a stretch of deep, dark, dismal woods.

"Here, if anything, I should find an adventure," he said. "And yet something such as Nurse Jane dreamed about me may also happen!" But as he saw no clothes lines he took heart and hopped on until, all of a sudden, a voice cried:

"I'm coming! Oh, yes, I'm coming to get you! Wait a minute!"

"Oh, here's the bad luck! Here's where I'm caught by a bad chap!" cried Uncle Wiggily, and his legs shook so with fright that he began to shiver and shake. He shook so he would have fallen down had he not caught hold of a tree. And still he shook.

The bunny shivered and shook so much that he shook the tree. Oh, how hard he shook the tree, until he shook off a lot of the leaves, which were almost ready to fall, anyhow, because Jack Frost had touched them with his chilling fingers.

Down fell the leaves that the bunny shook from the tree. They fell into a pile on the ground. The leaves fell around the bunny and covered him from sight, like the Babes in the Woods.

"Ah, now whoever is after me can't find me!" thought the rabbit as he remained hidden under the fallen leaves. Again the voice cried:

"I'm coming! Yes, I'm coming to get you! Wait a minute!" And out of the bushes, as Uncle Wiggily could see by peeping through the pile of leaves over him, he saw Mrs. Stubtail, the kind lady bear.

"I'm coming to get you, Guffy!" she called to her little boy bear, who was stuck in the mud. "Wait a minute!" And when Uncle Wiggily saw who it was—good, kind Mrs. Stubtail, a friend of his—why he wasn't afraid any more.

"I'll help you pull Guffy out of the mud!" he cried, and, tossing aside the leaves he ran to Mrs. Stubtail.

"Goodness! I never knew you were there beneath the leaves!" laughed Guffy's mother. And soon the little boy bear was pulled from the mud and all was well, except that Guffy was quite dirty.

"Well, it's a good thing the leaves fell when I shivvered the tree, for it might have been the Bob Cat instead of you," said the bunny to the lady bear, and she said yes, it might. So it all happened for the best, you see. And if the rice pudding doesn't go down town to the movies and come back without its raisins, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the peach pie.

IS EVERY DAY A BACKACHE DAY?

Glendale Folks Have Found the Cause and Corrected It.

Is your back lame and achy? Are you tortured with sharp, rheumatic pains; miserable with headaches, dizzy spells and kidney irregularities? No wonder, then, you feel worn-out and discouraged. But have you given any thought to your kidneys? You should! Weak kidneys cause just such troubles. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Here's a Glendale case.

Mrs. C. H. Prasuhn, 1514 S. Gardena Ave., says: "Sharp, cutting pains took me through the small of my back and there were times when I could hardly stoop or straighten. Those pains only dug in deeper each move I made. During the day, this trouble was always worse, especially if I stood any length of time. Doan's Pills, however, helped me at the start and one box from the Owl Drug Co., cured me, which has been lasting."

WHOLE TOWN IS BASEBALL CRAZY

Dignity of National Capital Threatened When Team Wins Pennant

By GEORGE BARRY
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—This town is crazy—just gone plain, plumb baseball crazy. For nearly a quarter of a century—twenty-three years to be exact—chief justices of the United States supreme court, members of a half dozen cabinets, senators whose names have been forgotten, and the myriad under-paid government clerks who make up the national capital, have been shoving their quarters, halves and dollars through the wicket at American league ball park hoping to see a Washington team that could do something besides get licked by seven other teams. And now they've got a pennant-winner! And a world's series!

If Bucky Harris, the 27-year-old manager of Washington's first pennant-winning team, succeeds in outguessing John McGraw and winning the world's series they might just as well transfer the national capital to Kokomo, Ind., for Washington won't be able to function as a regular national capital for years to come.

Walt Gets Auto

They're going to give Walter Johnson, the veteran pitching ace of the Nationals, a limousine, raised by popular subscription. The dollars of cabinet officers and the dimes of girl clerks in the government departments went to buy that machine. And Harris and the rest are going to get theirs, too.

Rain, or shine, it will make no difference in the welcome to the Nats, nor in the size of the crowd that will see the first game of the world series next Saturday. The weather man was dubious today. He would not forecast fair weather, probably would be unsettled, he said. But damp weather is no dampener for Washington's baseball spirit. That's already been proven.

Officers of the club are swamped with applications for tickets. The park is not large and there will be difficulty in finding accommodations for all those who are demanding tickets.

After These Long Years

Washington baseball fans were rewarded yesterday for their patient wait when the Senators won the American league pennant. At the top are the gates thousands will storm to see the world series, and below, a view of the park and playing field.

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News

Washington fans have waited long and patiently for a pennant. They had been near the realization of their hopes but twice before the 1924 campaign drew to a close.

For two years in a row, 1912 and 1913, the capital city outfit flirted with the pennant in the closing days of the campaign and finished second in the final reckoning. Griffith was the manager then. In fact, 1912 was his first year with the club.

After those two hectic campaigns the team hit the skids until in 1916 it wound up in seventh place.

Seventeen of the past twenty-four campaigns the Washington club wound up in second division. Those two second place years were the only ones that ended with the club that high in the race. Only twice had the team landed in third place when the present campaign started. That was in 1914 and 1918.

In the twenty-four years the club has been in existence ten managers have labored to win a pennant for the capital.

Few present-day fans remember Manning and Loftus, the first two pilots. Jake Stahl, the next man to take the helm, won fame and popularity during his baseball career and was well known to the 1924 fans. He died a couple of years ago while engaged in the banking business.

Joe Cantillon, who succeeded Stahl, tried in vain for three years to build a pennant winner. Then "Poncho Joe" became one of the bulwarks of the American association.

Jimmie McAleer, after his two year term with the Washington club, became president of the Boston Red Sox.

Griffith managed the team eight campaigns—until he became president of the club in the winter of 1919-20. He then named George McBride, veteran infielder, as manager, partly for sentimental reasons and partly because the veteran was really a keen student of the game and possessed, Griffith believed, managerial ability.

Ill health forced McBride to surrender the reins. Clyde Milan, fleet-footed and popular centerfielder, followed George as manager, but gave up the job after a year.

The appointment of Donie Bush as manager for 1923 was a popular one with American league fans generally. Donie had been acquired by Griff after years of starring as shortstop for Detroit. Harris was named last winter.

HARD TO SELECT SERIES WINNER

It's Easy to Pick Champions As Forecasting Weather, Says Dave Walsh

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The day was not so far distant when Washington merely was a place where they had a president, two ball players and a monument. But that day is not now. The Washington Senators not only are champions of the American league, by virtue of as game a fight as ever a ball club waged, but they may be world's champions-in-prospect, for all the writer or any one else knows. They are to meet the New York Giants in the 1924 world series, beginning on Saturday, and the winner is as easy to guess as the probable weather on next Tuesday a week.

Neither has a great ball club. They have too much in the way of paper profits, to-wit., apparent strength covering actual weakness. The Giants, for example, had a fine infield when Kelly, Frisch, Jackson and Groh were playing the positions up to their best form. But with Terry at first base and Kelly in center field, the defense of both positions is weakened and little gained in other respects. It may be that Kelly will be returned to his natural position for the series. In that case the infield's effectiveness will be increased.

Says Stars Slipping

Groh is slipping and his efficiency figures to be impaired by his recent injury. Neither will Frisch be benefited by the fact that he will tote a dislocated finger into the series.

Certainly the Senators possess the more compact infield of the two, with Judge and Peckinpaugh, regardless of whether Kelly appears in the infield or outfield. Frisch, uninjured, is a better second baseman and altogether a more valuable ball player than Harris, but not enough to make a great deal of difference; particularly if the Giant star is not at his best. Groh is likely to hit better than Bluege. On the other and remaining hand, Bluege may be the star of the series. He is young and whole, while the Giant third baseman, is a fragile veteran who may warp his wishbone on the first hard play he attempts.

The Senators' paper profits are found in the fact that they are supposed to have the better pitching staff. Perhaps they did in mid-season. But no one could help observe that in the latter stages of the race Washington was winning many of the games in which the opposition scored from five to eight runs per game. That spoke well of the Senators' punch and fighting spirit but it did not savor of championship pitching.

Johnson Is Star

Johnson is the star of the outfit; yet even he seemed to be overworked during the closing games of the season. Zachary and Mogridge are good left handers. They were better in August or at least the records indicate they were. Marberry won a lot of early games and undoubtedly is a first-class relief man. However, the Washington staff looks none too stable at this writing.

And the present, not the past, is the time when they plan to play this world's series. The Giant staff of Bentley, Barnes, McQuillan, Nehf and Watson is the same one that was mangled by the Yanks in the 1923 series. Then again, it is quite different. Bentley is a much improved pitcher for his extra year in the big time. Barnes is a consistent winner. Nehf and McQuillan have pitched excellent ball recently.

Take Your Choice

I think that, if anything, the Giants can look for more consistent pitching than the Senators, except when Walter Johnson is working. I also think that the McGraw entry has the more consistent attack, although you cannot tell which player will hit and which will not in any given set of seven games. Behind the plate, Ruel has developed into one of the best catchers in the league and has a clear lead over either Gowdy or Snyder of the Giants, but it is my observation that catchers seldom decide a world series; they make too few mistakes, even the worst of them. Neither Gowdy nor Snyder comes within that definition.

I like the Senators' outfield of Goslin, McNeely or Leibold and Rice, better than any combination McGraw might start. It is understood that he favors Wilson, Kelly and Young; good hitters all, but outside of Young, not very sound defensively. The Senators' outfield probably will hit just as well, at that.

When the Big Bambino arrives from San Francisco on the morning of October 27, he will be greeted by a reception committee of leading citizens headed by Harry Williams, president of the Pacific Coast league.

SETS NEW RECORD

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Rogers Hornsby, Cardinal second baseman, has taken a place beside the greatest hitters in baseball history. In the season just closed here Hornsby established two new records, one in batting average and the other in leading his league for the fifth consecutive season. Hornsby finished with a total of 227 hits in 142 games, making a season's average of .42351, four points above George Sisler's mark of two years ago. Sisler had an approximate .420 average, which tied Tyrus Cobb's record set in 1911, the high water mark of modern baseball. The previous consecutive year batting record was held by Honus Wagner, who led his league four successive years.

CONTRACT IS BANNED

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 30. — Basing its decision on the New Testament proverb that no man can serve two masters, the Third district court of appeal ruled against the Stockton city council in the matter of awarding a contract for work on the new city auditorium to a firm in which Councilman John Charlesworth is interested.

Frisch Certain to Play; Groh May Not Cover Third

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.— The condition of Frank Frisch and Heinie Groh, injured infielders of the New York Giants, was reported today as improving. Frisch is regarded as an almost certain starter at second base for the Giants in Saturday's game, but Groh's ability to play will not be ascertained until he attempts to place some strain upon his injured legs. In the event that Groh fails to round to, Fred Lindstrom, recruit infielder, will occupy third base.

START SEAT SALE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Applications for tickets to the third, fourth and fifth games of the world series, all of which will be played in this city, began to pour in upon the offices of the New York Giants today. So great has been the early demand for reservations that ticket officials announced today that telephone applications will not be accepted. Tickets placed on sale include only those for seats in the lower stand, costing $16.50 for the three games. No tickets will be sold in advance for single games.

MATTHEWS RELEASED

STOCKTON, Sept. 30.—Outfielder "Wid" Matthews, acquired from the Washington Americans in the Earl McNeely deal several weeks ago, has been released by the Sacramento Senators, it was announced today by Lewis Moreing, president of the Sacramento club. Matthews will go back to the Washington club and the Sacramento team still has the choice of three players or $15,000 to finish payment for McNeely. Matthews was unable to get started on the Pacific coast.

ANOTHER SERIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The "Little World's series," between Baltimore, winner in the International and St. Paul, victor in the American association, will open in Baltimore on Thursday.

Even Money Bets On World Series Is Now Predicted

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.— Little betting on the world series has been reported along Broadway to date, but the consensus of opinion was that even money should be the prevailing price when play is called in the opening game. Professional gamblers were of the opinion that the Senators should be made favorites at odds of 6 to 5. In support of this contention, one sizable bet of $1800 to $1500 on Washington has been reported.

START SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The first game of the world series between Washington and the New York Giants will be played here at 2 o'clock, Saturday, Edward Eynon, jr., secretary of the home club, announced here today.

President Coolidge will toss out the first ball and reservations have been made for practically every high governmental official in Washington to attend.

Seats will be placed on sale immediately, Eynon said, preference being given to residents of Washington.

TAGGING THE BASES

Emil Yde southpawed for six innings only, but hung up his eighteenth victory of the season when Songer stopped the Cubs, Pittsburgh winning 5 to 4.

Washington finally nailed down the lid on the American league pennant chase by turning in a well played game for a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox.

The White Sox tossed an odd assortment of rookies into the contest with Detroit and got away with it, winning 16 to 5.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Buffalo—Frankie Schoelle of Buffalo won decision over Augie Ratner of New York. Freddie Mueller, Buffalo, defeated Alf Wade, England, six rounds. Al Paul, Buffalo, knocked out Earl Smith, Omaha, first round. Stanley Smith, Buffalo, and Manny Owens, England, draw, four rounds.

At Canton—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, knocked out Tut Jackson, Washington Courthouse, second round.

FOR GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Two elements annually combine to detract from the drama of the opening of the football season. Professional baseball always comes to crescendo along about now and, besides, most colleges select as opposing teams players of inferior merit.

As a result the gridiron season usually comes into being as mildly, as unobtrusively as the most shrinking of spring violets.

For example, it would be difficult to imagine the loyal sons of Wisconsin getting excited over the North Dakota contest on Saturday. In this connection it might be said, however, that football critics will be deeply interested in the sort of showing the Badgers make even though the game as a contest does not promise a lot. It will be the way in which the Badgers win, not how much they win by.

Jack Ryan, the coach, made a fine impression in his first year at Madison and while vacant places, especially in the line, confront him, the writer happens to know that replacements from last year's freshmen outfit as well as strong player ineligibles in 1923 will round out a very formidable assortment of material.

Time and time again in the past decade titles have slipped out of the Badgers' hands just as they were about to be tightly grasped. Now there is the feeling at Madison that despite talk of brilliant prospects at Illinois, Michigan and elsewhere, Wisconsin has a real chance to spring the big surprise of the western season.

Down in Dixie are to be found exceptions to the usual cut and dried opening day in football. In fact, the season there will open with an unaccustomed detonation. Oglethorpe vs. Georgia Tech. Georgia vs. Mercer.

Oglethorpe and Mercer in past years have pretty much resembled the football with which they play. In other words, they have been kicked around. But last year the Petrels sprung a surprise by holding their opponents scoreless in the first half. The final score was 28 to 13, and it was a real football game from whistle to whistle. So it is likely to be this year and a big crowd of Georgians are certain to sit in at this family combat. The Petrels backfield on paper this season looks to be the equal of any in the south.

As for Mercer, she held Georgia scoreless for three periods last year and in the last quarter lost by a single touchdown when the Bull Dogs took advantage of a blocked punt.

Veterans Return to Homes After Reunion

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30. — Former soldiers from all parts of the west were returning home today following conclusion of the fifth annual reunion of the Ninety-first division, A. E. F. Thomas Henry Boyd of Portland was chosen president and Portland was selected as the 1925 meeting place. M. E. Saville of Oakland was named permanent secretary and historian and R. C. Stevenson of San Francisco re-elected treasurer.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP

By FAIR PLAY
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Mickey Walker, who has been receiving scores of bids for battles all over the country, has at last begun to line up some definite stuff. Next month, for instance, he is going to fight Jock Malone in Jersey. This will be a fine test of Mickey's present condition.

Walker is willing to meet Shade and right here the writer issues a tip to out of town promoters that a chance exists to get this battle—so far, at least, as Walker is concerned.

Mickey won't fight in New York. He is through with the New York boxing commission, he says. And the writer does not blame him.

The Dempsey-Gibbons show at Shelby is now being shown on the screen in New York. How the pictures got here the writer doesn't know. But even though belated, they will be welcome to all who wish to see how the champion was stood off for fifteen rounds.

Watching the pictures there come fresh impressions of Dempsey's lack of viciousness and of Gibbons' wonderful bicycle work and his ability to tie up the titleholder.

In the fifteenth round especially, Gibbons deliberately hung on to Dempsey, a favorite practice being to lock his right or left hand under Jack's elbow.

In the east, or in fact anywhere but in Boston, Gibbons would have been disqualified for holding and locking fists as he did, but in Shelby the last thing Jimmy Johnston, the referee, thought of was disqualifying Gibbons. The fact that he is alive today providing pork chops for Mistah Goddard is due to the fact that he did not fire the St. Paulian out of the ring.

SPORT WISDOM

Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Advices from the Pacific coast point to a season in the Pacific coast conference with every man's hand turned against the four time champion University of California team.

The University of California, although it won its fourth straight championship last season, did not have things nearly so much its own way as it had had in the preceding years, and its traditional enemies are saying that this is the year for the evening of old scores.

Last year California was able to win the "big game," that against Stanford, by a score of only 9 to 0. Now that Glenn Warner has taken up his duties at Stanford, the Palo Alto men and their backers are full of confidence that they can down Coach Smith's eleven. Kerr will stay at Stanford as Warner's assistant, and his two years' work there will enable him to furnish Warner with all the needed dope about material and prospects.

Coach Murray of Marquette has a squad of fifty men working out at Lake Beulah, in preparation for the game with the Navy at Annapolis on October 11. The fact that Marquette has not lost a game since November, 1921, that it was the only team to defeat Boston college last year, and that Murray has more than a dozen of his letter men of 1923 left, give some indication of what sort of a struggle is in store for the Navy. Among the last year men is Dilweg, one of the star ends of the middle west last season, who is captain of this year's team. Another is Lunz, a 210-pounder who made a name for himself last season at tackle. Others include Lane, a good tackle; Cartwright, a powerful guard; Sullivan, a steady passing center, Ziemsach and Kemp, a pair of good halves, and Bader, a hard-hitting fullback.

Folwell, down at Annapolis, of course, knows all this, and is making his places accordingly. His backfield still is something of a puzzle, for graduation depletes his ranks there, while he also lost Captain Carney, Matthews and Levensky from the middle of his line. But he has some good new material. Zuber and Hutchins, substitutes last year, and Lenz, who should come into his own and make a star guard this year. Folwell also may use Powell and Chillingworth of the crew. The latter is a good punter. Clyde, the tackle, could be made a guard and Wickhorst of last year's plebes, could also be moved in from tackle if necessary. Shewell, a 200-pounder of last year's squad, also is available.

Captain Taylor, of course, will play one end, but Stolz will be missed at the other. His substitute, Brown, probably will make a strong bid for the place, but he will have some mighty stiff competition in Hardwick, the old Virginia Poly man, who was a star in his section and probably has not forgotten anything he knew.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

GLENDALE PROPERTY

SOUTH BRAND

Offers the best opportunity in Glendale for investment and profit-making. Do you know that Hollywood has over ten miles of business frontage selling for $1000 to $3000 per front foot, while Glendale only has five blocks at this value? After careful consideration we safely estimate that every front foot of property on South Brand to Los Feliz Road should be selling at $1,-000 or more per front foot within two years. See us today regarding the following frontage which is priced below all other frontage in the same districts:

Lot 50x135 to alley between Palmer and Cypress, price $330 per front foot half cash, balance mortgage.

Lot 60x100 next to Standard Oil station corner of Los Feliz. Owner refused $700 per front foot for corner lot. This lot priced at $425 per front foot. This is at one of the best corners on So. Brand.

Lot 78x105 to alley and alley along side, between Garfield and Acacia, priced at less than $500 per front foot, easy terms. There is not another piece in the block that can be bought for less than $650 per front foot, nor is there another lot north of Park Ave., that can be bought for less than $550 per front foot to compare with this. Buy this 78 feet and make $40,000.

HOLD PARADE TO BOOST FOR BONDS

Stream of Autos and Trucks Carrying Passengers and Banners Urge Issues

Business firms, luncheon and service clubs and citizens of Glendale joined together in a parade boosting for the bond issue election yesterday afternoon and a stream of automobiles and trucks measuring approximately two miles long wended through the business and residential sections of the city for an hour, banners floating from every vehicle urging voters to carry the election.

Headed by Chief of Police John D. Fraser and a squad of motorcycle traffic and other officers, including W. A. Devers, M. G. Collins, Kenneth Butler, M. J. Ropel, G. Mercer, R. Baugh, Holly Hutton, Captain Will Loving and Lieutenant Bill Royle, the parade started from Burchett street and down Brand boulevard. Following the traffic officers was a fire truck, driven by Al Moniot and a half dozen automobiles boosting for the fire bonds closely followed.

Officials Take Part

City officials, headed by Mayor Spencer Robinson and including Councilmen T. A. Davis, C. E. Kimlin and Asa Hall, formed next in line and other city officials followed, with luncheon clubs, business firms and the citizenry next represented. G. O. Russel, chairman of the bond parade committee, aided by M. B. Towman, had all plans neatly worked out for the parade and not the slightest jam resulted at the formation point on Burchett street.

A combination band, made up of Elks, Sciots and others braved the heat to give music along the route of the parade. Gaylord Russel was in charge.

The Kiwanis club headed the list, following the band, and next in order came the Rotary, Exchange, Optimist, Tuesday Afternoon club, Realty board, Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' association, Thursday Afternoon club, American Legion, Y. M. C. A., San Fernando Road Improvement association, Colorado Boulevard Improvement association, Sciots, Fourth Street Improvement association, Knights of Columbus, Elks and citizenry. Starting down Brand boulevard the string of machines came to Broadway, thence over to Verdugo, south to Colorado, west to Glendale avenue, south to Cerritos, west to Brand, north to Broadway, west to Central and back to the point of beginning.

Banners Boost Bonds

Practically every machine had banners urging the support of the bonds. The Berkeley fire was emphasized as the cause for Glendale carrying the fire bonds and other issues were equally as well set forth. Truckloads of flowers and trees with banners urging the support of the park site issues were entered in the parade by the Glendale Park commission. Although some of the parade entrants were against part of the bond issues, they entered and boosted for the ones they favored mostly.

The committee of men who canvassed the city under the direction of G. O. Russel as chairman and secured the entiants for the parade was made up of the following, with the districts named: East Broadway, Frank Winn; Glendale avenue, J. K. Todd; West Broadway, W. Cole and J. I. Wernette; North Brand, J. B. Galvin; South Brand to Park, Ira Carlock; Park to San Fernando, Charles E. Murphy; Central avenue, William Truitt; East Colorado, M. B. Towman.

Judges who awarded the prizes for the best car and the best banner were Alexander Mitchell, Mrs. Roy Ballagh, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, Rev. E. E. Ford and Miss Pearl Keller.

The banner for the best decorated automobile was awarded to Fisher's Variety store, the machine being driven in the parade by R. J. Faye. The fire department was awarded the banner for the most suggestive plea for the support of the bonds. Paul Moniot drove the truck in the parade. The city park department entered the floats consisting of automobile loads of flowers, and will be given a banner for the best float. Sam Warren assisted in placing the two trucks in the parade.

WALTER HENRY ROTHWELL, conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra.

The Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra will be heard at the Broadway High school auditorium the night of Friday, October 17. Walter Henry Rothwell conducting, announces George U. Moyse, G. U. H. S. principal.

"The citizens of metropolitan Glendale will, I am sure, take particular delight in this rare musical treat, permitting us to enjoy here the same high standard of entertainment usually confined only to the largest cities in the United States," says Mr. Moyse.

"The heavy cost of maintaining a symphony orchestra of the quality of Mr. Rothwell's organization makes it practically impossible to offer such music in the smaller centers, and therefore Glendale is doubly fortunate in having such a peerless orchestra brought here for its particular enjoyment.

"The Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, aside from its position of internationally recognized artistic excellence, is unique for the reason that one man, W. A. Clark, Jr., founded and has for the five years of its existence paid the total deficits of the orchestra, aggregating over $930,000. Mr. Clark has made a further guarantee of $750,000 to cover the deficits of the next five years so that undivided attention can be given to raising the already high degree of artistic excellence of the Philharmonic to the point where it will be excelled by none.

"Let us balance our truly remarkable material growth of recent years by a like advance culturally and spiritually. There is no better way to begin than by hearing this wonderful concert couched in the easily understood and universal language of music."

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Sept. 30.—Approximately 5000 school children, representing twenty-six Los Angeles elementary schools, are to participate in the gala pageant, "Moon Dreams," to be given at Patterson stadium, Occidental college, October 17 and 18, under the auspices of Section F. of the P.-T. A. Federation, the proceeds to buy milk for undernourished kiddies.

The play was written by Mrs. Anne Hare Harrison and Mrs. Martha Hare Cowan of Eagle Rock and is a spectacular pageant that fires the imagination for both young and old. It is the story of two children, Rosemary and Robin, who wander into the forest at nightfall.

Bewitched by a shaft of moon beams, the children fall under the spell of the moon, and are entranced by a gorgeous pageant presenting stars of the night, sunset clouds, night winds, wood nymphs, night fairies, gypsies, shepherdesses and all the fairy folk of the forest, in a fantastic series of songs, dances and pantomimes. With the exception of one or two well known choruses, the songs are originated by Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Cowan, who have written and directed children's plays and pageants in many southland cities.

Edwin Baker, Eagle Rock's representative on the Los Angeles City Council, has succeeded in having Colorado boulevard included in the $1,000,000 program of street improvement slated for the immediate future.

Friends of Mrs. L. M. Fotte, now of Riverside, California, will be interested to know of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Hilda Foote, to Claude E. Crowley of Tulsa, Okla. Mrs. Foote also announces the marriage of Thomas Arthur Morgan to Miss Bertha Anderson of Salt Lake City.

Mrs. W. J. Stewart of Philadelphia Pa., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Lyon of 2404 Colorado boulevard. Mrs Stewart is spending an extended visit in the southland and has grown very fond of Eagle Rock during her short stay here.

MORE BAY CITY FIRMS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—Sixteen new businesses launched each day. That is the enviable record established by San Francisco during the past twelve months, according to the local Chamber of Commerce. The opening of these sixteen new enterprises means a new capital expenditure of at least $25,000 daily or $625,000 monthly.

HOLD DISCUSSION OF BOND ISSUES

Mass Meeting Hears Brief Talks on Propositions Before Voters Today

Every angle of the ten bond propositions totaling $1,705,500, on which Glendale voters are today expressing themselves at the polls, was fully and finally thrashed out last night at a mass meeting held at the Tuesday Afternoon club auditorium, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson presiding.

As each speaker finished his exposition of a particular proposition, open discussion was had from the floor, in this way bringing forward in a series of terse one-minute talks the essential angles.

P. J. Hayselden, chief of the Glendale unit, Angeles Forest Protective association, was the first speaker, outlining briefly the need for propositions Nos. 1 and 3, calling for a $63,500 issue for a fire alarm system and a $36,500 issue for a police alarm system.

Some Objections

W. L. Twining next spoke urging that the $60,000 issue for additional fire stations and equipment be voted, pointing out that this city would be in the position of Berkeley a year ago, under similar circumstances, with the present insufficient equipment.

Councilman S. A. Davis took objection to some of Mr. Twining's remarks, as did J. R. Grey and J. S. Knox.

Peter Hanson talked in behalf of the $650,000 civic center. O. M. Newby urged the $12,000 be voted for bridges, Peter Diederich, superintendent of plant and production, spoke for the $676,000 water bonds, R. E. Tucker presented the $50,000 garbage proposition and L. H. Wilson talked for the $157,500 park system.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Sept. 30.—The annual report of F. S. Webster, city clerk, shows that Burbank closed its fiscal year on March 1 with $627,920 worth of municipal property to its credit.

The city had received from all sources during the year the sum of $432,583.03 and had spent the sum of $371,134.77, leaving a cash balance on that date, including the balance on hand at the beginning of the year, of $126,403.27.

During the fiscal year, $34,335.10 was collected in fines, through Judge A. A. Crawford of the Burbank police court. On one occasion, the report shows, three men were fined $1000 each for liquor law violations and came through with crisp $1000 bills.

The public service department took in the sum of $196,047.83 and spent $203,156.64. The excess of expenditures over receipts was due to the large amount of improvements and extensions made in the water and light and power departments.

Only THOR can iron as you can!

TO make it worth while for you to iron with an electric ironer, the ironer must iron as well as you can, and do it at a saving to you of time and labor. This Thor alone can do through features not found in other machines. "Finger flick" shoe (ironing surface) control that brings the shoe to the article being ironed, just as you iron by hand, is one of them.

ATTACKS KU KLUX KLAN

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 30.—Branding the Ku Klux Klan as "undemocratic, unchristian and un-American," Dr. Merle Smith of Pasadena addressed the Southern California annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church of the First Methodist Episcopal church here recently. Dr. Smith did not speak of the Klan by name, but referring to it as "an order that you have in mind," he stated that "outside of that, it is all right." BOBBED HEAD DOOMED

BALBOA, Sept. 30.—Like other fads and fancies, the bobbed head is doomed. So says Madame La Rue, well-known show-woman and theatre owner of Balboa. Flowing uncut tresses, for ages past a woman's "crowning glory," will remain forever, since "there is latent in every man and woman a love of physical beauty which finds little or no expression in abbreviated tresses."

IN BUSINESS WORLD

By J. C. ROYLE

Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29.—The prosperity of the farmers of the middle west and northwest has been reflected in the situation of the owners and operators of vessels on the Great Lakes and bids fair to save them from what otherwise might have been an unprofitable season. Practically all the idle ships, and there were more than a hundred units in the laid up fleet a month ago, have been fitted out to grab the fall grain trade which their owners expect to be unusually heavy between now and the close of navigation.

The exceptions are those vessels which are owned by steel and ore interests or are chartered to such interests, and which are devoted solely to carrying iron ore and coal. The volume of freight represented by these two latter commodities has been extremely unsatisfactory this season.

According to George L. Marr, secretary of the Lake Carriers' association, the tonnage of iron ore brought from the head of the lakes probably will not exceed 40,000,000 tons this season, as compared with 59,000,000 tons in 1923. Most of the vessels engaged in the ore carrying trade have about completed their contracts and are just sweeping up the remanants of a slack season. The volume of coal carried to the northwest also has been light, Mr. Marr added, since last winter was mild, supplies were ample and a heavy carryover of coal tonnage resulted.

It is quite evident that the entry of Henry Ford into the coal carrying trade with his two Diesel engined cargo carriers has not materially affected the coal trade, since it is possible for those boats to carry less than one thirtieth of the monthly tonnage required even under the most favorable conditions.

The situation as regards transshipment of wheat at Montreal does not present probability of much change before that port is closed for the winter. Elevator facilities are inadequate to handle the grain which is sure to be shipped from the prairie provinces, either by rail or water, and the number of ocean-going vessels is so small that grain can not be poured into their holds direct from the conveyance which carries it to Montreal. It is likely, therefore, that the activity of the American grain ships on the lakes will continue as long as ice will permit.

keep that door Closed!

Our business is to sell ice, but that doesn't mean we want to see ice wasted. It also is our business to see that you get the best possible service from ice—and you can't get the best service if you leave your refrigerator door open any longer than necessary.

When the doors are opened, warm air comes in and that makes ice waste. Keep that door closed and you'll find it costs very little to keep your refrigerator filled with ice every day in the year. To keep your foods pure and wholesome you need ice every day in the year.
